And could someone take stock of how many students are not on this group, don't have access to internet and any such bottlenecks that people may be facing? Even if you know of one such case, please post the information here.

Mam i don't know about how many students are not here, but many students said that they are happy with the recordings of lectures that you send. And they don't want you to take online lectures on zoom because of internet connection problems. If you could continue with the recorded lectures, it would be great help. Thankyou mam. 😊

I second.

1:12 pm

I have also just realised that Zoom is a platform that accommodates a very limited number of students, and I don't want to implement a method that excludes the majority. Yours is a class of 80+ students. Please discuss this in your group (the one without me) and assign one person to post the consensus here. We will take it up from there.

One request. Please don't make my audio classes go viral. They are not the most perfect, so I don't want students in other colleges or any random person to listen to them. If someone in your class has been unable to access them, you can share with them. Also I can claim copyright violation. Treat this as a method of communication during an emergency situation, only between the class and me. I mean this seriously.
