The Economics Society at Hansraj College held its official induction ceremony on October 7th, 2024, welcoming 50 enthusiastic new members into the fold. The event marked an important milestone for incoming students as they took their first formal step into one of the college's most active academic communities.

Senior members of the society led the session, providing newcomers with a comprehensive overview of how the organization functions. They walked through the practical aspects of being part of the society, including the rules and regulations that help maintain a productive and professional environment. This wasn't just a dry rundown of dos and don'ts but rather an introduction to the culture and expectations that make the society successful.

members would actively contribute to these events, whether through organizing, participating, or helping with outreach and logistics. This emphasis on involvement helped newcomers understand that they weren't just joining as passive attendees but as active contributors.

The interactive format of the session proved particularly valuable as an ice breaker. New members had the opportunity to connect with their peers who share similar academic interests, while also getting to know the senior members in a relaxed setting. These early connections often form the foundation for collaborative projects and lasting friendships.

By the end of the induction, the 50 new members had a clear sense of what being part of the Economics Society entails and felt genuinely welcomed into a community committed to exploring economic ideas beyond the classroom.
