Event Description (About 250 Words):

On October 16, 2024, in honour of World Food Day, the Culinary Arts Society joined up with CoExist to have a heartfelt food drive aimed at feeding stray animals in the neighbourhoods encompassing Hansraj College. The event aimed to deliver food for the stray animals found living in the neighbourhoods around Hansraj College. This venture had the dual purpose of providing healthy food to hungry animals as well as increasing awareness about animal welfare among students and community members. Members of the two organizations met, donating excess food and bread to help feed the animals. This collaborative effort showcased the benevolence and dedication of the groups, as well as their shared objective of making a difference in the lives of these often-overlooked animals. The occasion was mindfully organized, with students and inhabitants working side by side to guarantee that animals who frequently go without reliable food sources receive the support they need. As the food drive continued, it gained the attention of passersby, several of whom stopped to commend the volunteers for their work. The gratitude and encouragement of the surrounding community helped to make the event a success and encouraged the students to continue in their endeavours to improve animal welfare. What started as a simple effort to provide sustenance to stray animals turned into a grand display of compassion and community spirit. This World Food Day activity went beyond just a one-time event, instead, it became a touching reminder of the significance of sympathy and care for all living
