Description:

UDAAN-The Motivational Society of Hansraj College, University of Delhi organised its event at Library Auditorium. Themed around CRACKING THE CODE OF SUCCESS: Discipline, Dedication & Direction, the event aimed at inspire students through the journeys and experiences of three distinguished personalities, Major Abhinandan Singh (IPS) whose service ethos and decisive leadership embody belief with action; Atul Garg Sir, known for translating potential into responsible execution and Aasim Sir, a mentor who turns classrooms and campus hours into systems for consistent excellence.

The event opened with a warm welcome to our distinguished speakers. Following the introductions that highlighted their journeys and contributions, the lamp-lighting ceremony symbolized the pursuit of knowledge and the clarity that discipline brings to aspiration. To honor their presence and the wisdom they shared, a felicitation ceremony was held, where Major Abhinandan Singh (IPS), Atul Garg Sir, and Aasim Sir were presented with tokens of appreciation amid heartfelt applause from the audience.

Opening the session, Aasim Sir grounded success in everyday systems by using college hours deliberately, anchor study to the official syllabus, and interleave NCERTs with PYQs to keep preparation tightly aligned with exam demand, continuing he urged students to treat preparation like a marathon—steady pacing, putting sleep, nutrition, and scheduled recovery as the only sustainable route to peak performance. Emphasizing concentration and revision, he recommended spaced repetition, active recall, timed study blocks, and simple digital boundaries, while advocating an error-log culture he emphasises that if you fail fast it means you will learn faster, so that mistakes fuel weekly course corrections and growing current-affairs confidence through concise, syllabus-linked note-making. Building on this foundation, Major Abhinandan Singh (IPS) focused on inner architecture: an invincible belief system, fast yet correctable decision-making, and the discipline to commit once a path is chosen rather than looking back and second-guessing progress mid-stride. He framed “luck” as the by-product of work highlighting that preparation expands opportunity’s surface area. Also, he emphasises on respect for time, mentors, and peers to the long games of UPSC and professional tracks by aspirants, where iterative clarity beats perfectionism and consistent execution ultimately compounds into meaningful outcomes. Concluding the speaker sequence, Atul Garg Sir translated potential into responsibility, insisting that real discipline means sticking to the plan rather than to moods, with time-blocking and checklists acting as mood-proof scaffolds for daily output. He coupled dedication with direction via mentors and feedback loops, prioritized systems over fluctuating motivation, and highlighted interest alignment, emotional regulation, physical fitness, and a daily writing habit to sharpen thought; his mantra: do ordinary tasks in an extraordinary way, accept necessary sacrifices, and define problems precisely before solving them. The session distilled a simple promise: when discipline sets the rhythm, dedication sustains the effort, and direction keeps every hour aligned to the syllabus and PYQs, progress becomes inevitable and measurable. Aasim Sir’s campus-first systems, Major Abhinandan Singh’s invincible belief and decisive execution, and Atul Garg’s plan-over-mood discipline converged into a repeatable routine that values consistency over flashes of motivation, clarity over perfection, and health as the engine of long-haul performance. As students carry these lessons back to libraries, classrooms, and study desks, the call is to build small daily wins i.e., error logs, time blocks, active recall, and reflective writing—that compound into mastery, turning ordinary days into extraordinary outcomes. As the event drew to a close, President Adarsh Singh offered a heartfelt vote of thanks, acknowledging the clarity and conviction shared by Major Abhinandan

Singh (IPS), Atul Garg, and Aasim Sir, whose insights turned abstract motivation into a roadmap of discipline, dedication, and direction for every student in the hall.

The standing ovation that followed reflected not only admiration but a collective resolve to build belief, stick to the plan over moods, and align every study hour to the syllabus and PYQs—proof that success is a marathon of consistent steps guided by purpose . This was more than a session; it was a commitment ceremony to systems over spurts, learning from mistakes, and doing ordinary tasks extraordinarily well—so that small daily wins compound into outcomes worthy of the effort and the ideals shared today

As the cameras captured a final frame with Major Abhinandan Singh (IPS), Atul Garg Sir, and Aasim Sir, the room carried forward a shared pledge: discipline over mood, dedication over delay, and direction over doubt.
