Poster 1

Either it's 'US' or none.

Nature is the mother of all, we arise from it , are nurtured by it and we die with it . The part of nature within us can never be separated. Today we stand where we have actually lost that part . The roots within us are being chopped by us , but do we realize it is us who we are destroying?. At the end where there's only gonna be left debris, is when we realize , it was always meant to co exist . Either its us with the nature or just the illusion that we ever existed .

"Only nature can fully heal itself, but it can heal much faster if we help it along." - Robin Chazdon

From the very beginning, we all have read about how humans need nature - We obtain our nutrition from plants and animals, trees serve as sources of almost everything, chemicals and elements are extracted from earth's surface and so on. But we never read about how nature is also dependent on the proper conduct of humans. So, my poster is about the interdependence of human beings and nature which is inspired from a quote by Robin Chazdon: "Only nature can fully heal itself, but it can heal much faster if we help it along." So, my poster represents dark clouds of human activities that are destroying nature which ultimately will be harmful to everyone. From that darkness, we need to bring out the brightness and light, and prevent these inhuman activities from occurring. We need to help nature heal itself faster and assist in those activities which will unlock a healthy environment for everyone.

Connecting with nature

In this highly technical world , we find ourselves surrounded by tools and machine and have lost the natural beauty around, it's shameful to quote that we have to be dependent on the technology even for purified air and water.It's pathetic to highlight that we have lost the natural beauty of earth and have made it a meagre garbage. Even after knowing that we are so in dependence with nature , we are not doing anything for our future.The only thing we can do to protect it is taking care of them.
