Using the Union Budget as an example, Purav sir emphasized that editorials provide valuable insights from experts and serve as a crucial resource for staying updated on national and international affairs. The session also tackled several pressing concerns faced by UPSC aspirants through Q&A:

Choosing the Right Optional Subject: Sir advised that aspirants should select an optional subject they are proficient in and confident about. He emphasized that there is no inherent disadvantage in choosing a subject from their academic background if they have a strong grasp of it.

NCERT vs. Standard Books: Responding to a question about whether to begin with NCERT textbooks or standard reference books, sir highlighted that while both are important, NCERTs offer a foundational understanding and help build conceptual clarity. Jumping directly to standard books without a strong base could lead to confusion and loss of interest.

.When to Start UPSC Preparation: On the ideal time to begin UPSC preparation, he advised that while some students start as early as their first year of college, others begin after graduation. The key is to align preparation with one's academic schedule and personal capacity while ensuring a consistent and thorough approach.

Conclusion: The session concluded with Q&A where students asked their queries & questions related to preparation strategies, subject selection, and study resources. His practical and detailed responses provided valuable clarity and direction to the aspirants. Participants were provided with PW booklets along with e-certificates, refreshments, and discount coupons for GS offline courses offered by PW OnlyIAS. The session was highly informative and engaging, making the collaboration successful & beneficial for aspiring civil servants for their journey.
