The History Society, Hansraj College, organized a seminar titled Understanding Medieval India: Some Considerations on Sources and Historiography with Dr. Raziuddin Aquil, Associate Professor, Department of History, Faculty of Arts, University of Delhi. Dr. Aquil spoke on a range of topics concerning the historiography of the thousand-year-long medieval period in India. He highlighted regional historiographies, perspectives on gender, religion, economy, the time's ideologies, and sources' interpretations. He pointed out that how "Every History is contemporary History." The session was exciting and thought-provoking for all of us.
