

PIXELS

About the Society: Pixels, founded in 2013, began as an unofficial society of a few students of Hansraj College who had a love for photography. Pixels is now ranked among the top ten societies at Delhi University by a number of well-known rating platforms. Pixels organises inter- and intra-college photowalks, workshops, seminars, and talks on various aspects of photography on a regular basis in order to promote our goal of serving as a communal learning platform for all emerging photographers. Every year, our most well-known event, "Plickture," coincides with the college fest, and we organize photography competitions with a variety of topics and unique ideas. Apart from that, we show our art work on reputable platforms such as the India Habitat Centre under the name "Numaish" once a year. Because we share images shot by our members on a daily basis, our social media handles are highly popular among the masses. Pixels is the college's only platform for all photography-related activities, and we also accept projects from outside the campus to broaden our members' horizons.
