2018-2019

Name of the Department/Society: Ostraca

Name of the Event 2: Ostraca's bi-annual literary journal, The Medley

Date of the Event: 17-12-2018 to 29-07-2019

Issue 2 and 3 of our bi-annual literary journal, The Medley were released this session. While the second issue was non-themed, the third issue had the theme, 'Local Flavour'. We invited entries for the sections of Fiction, Non-Fiction and Poetry, with any variety of style, theme and genre. Photo Essays were also welcome. We looked for work from emerging writers and poets that has unbridled originality, a raw energy and doesn't shy away from coming into its own. We are glad to announce that the Issue Two of The Medley featured an interview with Shubhangi Swarup, journalist and debut author of Latitudes of Longing which recently won the Tata LitLive Prize and was shortlisted for the Inaugural JCB Prize for Literature.

The Third Issue featured an Interview with Sumana Roy. She is the author of How I Became a Tree, a work of non-fiction, Missing: A Novel, and Out of Syllabus: Poems. Sumana has also edited Animalia Indica: The Finest Animal Stories in Indian Literature. It also featured an Interview with Tishani Doshi. She is an award-winning poet, novelist and dancer. Her most recent books are Girls Are Coming Out of the Woods, shortlisted for the Ted Hughes Poetry Award, and a novel,

We tried to compile an issue that was synchronous with our mission to publish work "that is daring, meandering the space between the unsaid and unwritten". It was an attempt to put together a selection of works which negotiate individual as well as collective relationships with the spaces that we occupy in the hope that it proves to be a yet another singular offering of literary musings.
