Farhan Mozammil's workshop was a compelling journey through time and technology. It left participants enlightened about the technicalities of photography and, more importantly, stirred a newfound appreciation for the artistic legacy embedded in every click of the shutter.

The workshop kicked off with a journey through the evolution of camera technology. Mozammil walked us through the corridors of history, starting from the birth of the first camera in 1816. This captivating narrative traced the evolution of photography, showcasing the remarkable transition from ancient technologies to the modern marvels of mirrorless cameras we use today. The workshop passionately argued and convincingly demonstrated that photography is, undeniably, an art form. Mozammil underscored how each photograph is a creation, a visual story meticulously framed by human intellect; teaching us how photography goes beyond capturing moments; it's about freezing them in time, creating a visual narrative that becomes a part of our shared human history.
