Description:

The B.A. Programme Society of Hansraj College successfully organised an informative speaker session on the topic “Colonialism, The East India Company and the Revolt of 1857” on 10 November, 2025. The event featured Prof. Amar Farooqui Sir, Professor of History at the University of Delhi and Fellow at the Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

The session commenced with the welcome of Prof. Amar Farooqui Sir, followed by his felicitation with a tulsi plant and a shawl by the Society Convener, Dr. Preeti Rani, and President Palavi Rai as a gesture of respect and gratitude.

Prof. Farooqui began by elaborating on the background of the Revolt of 1857 and discussed the various major mutinies associated with it. He further expanded on the topic, offering a meaningful conclusion and sharing his insights with the audience. He also expressed his gratitude towards the college, recalling his association with the institution as a member of its teaching faculty in the 1990s.

The session then transitioned into an engaging question-and-answer round, where students enthusiastically asked questions and sought clarifications. The event witnessed active participation from around 80 students from different courses, who appreciated the depth of knowledge shared by the speaker and described the session as insightful and enriching. The engaging nature of the discussion led the session to extend beyond the scheduled time.
