

The INTACH works with college and university students to promote and train conservation based education. The History department of the college sends students to these some of these programs every year. On January 17, 2020 seven students attended a day long workshop on the issue. It not only gave them an overall understanding of how conservation is such a relevant issue today, they did take part in various activities that were organized and learnt a lot in a fun-filled way.

